HIV/AIDS BASIC INFORMATION

What is HIV?

HIV is the Human Immunodeficiency Virus. It attacks your body's ability to fight illness and weakens your immune system.

HIV is spread through contact with 4 bodily fluids: blood, semen, vaginal fluids and breast milk. There are 3 ways that HIV can be transmitted: blood-to-blood contact (such as sharing a needle with someone who is HIV positive); unprotected sex (oral, anal or vaginal) with a person who is HIV positive; and from HIV positive mother to child (before or during birth or from breastfeeding). HIV is not spread through casual contact like hugging, shaking hands, sitting next to someone, sharing meals, using telephones or by being bitten by an insect.

HIV disease can progress to AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) when your immune system is seriously damaged. With early diagnosis of HIV and participation in medical treatment, however, it is possible to prevent progression to AIDS.

How does HIV work? – The 4 Stages:

Stage 1: In the first stage, HIV infection is recent and usually occurs 2 to 8 weeks after the virus has been introduced to the body. During this time, a person may feel like they have the flu. The immune system is still able to fight back and symptoms may only last a few days up to 2 weeks.

Stage 2: In this stage, a person may look and feel perfectly healthy. Symptoms may not exist for another 8 to 10 years in some cases. However, the virus is still at work and damaging the immune system.

Stage 3: In Stage 3, a person begins experiencing symptoms that may include fever, night sweats, swollen lymph glands in the neck, underarm or groin area, upper respiratory infections, fatigue, diarrhea, rapid weight loss, decreased appetite, vaginal or oral yeast infections, white spots in the mouth or rashes. HIV can also cause damage to a person's nervous system, making them forget things easily and/or become confused. These symptoms are persistent and may last anywhere from several weeks up to several years. If you are experiencing any of these symptoms for more than a week, you should see a healthcare provider. While these may be signs of other illnesses, it is very important to seek medical advice.

Stage 4: In the final stage, HIV has severely damaged the immune system, leaving a person's body vulnerable to infection and disease. AIDS has now fully developed. In some cases, this does not occur for more than 10 years after infection, especially with the help of treatment. It is also important that a person's AIDS status be diagnosed and confirmed by a medical professional. With the body weakened by AIDS, other infections such as tuberculosis (TB), invasive cervical cancer, JVC (AIDS-related pneumonia formerly called PCP), wasting syndrome, candida/thrush, CMV retinitis, Kaposi's sarcoma and toxoplasmosis can simultaneously occur.

About Treatment:

An early HIV diagnosis and steady treatment can help a person live a full, active life. It is important that you see your physician when you are scheduled to and follow your treatment plan consistently. Currently, there is no cure for HIV infection or for AIDS. But new treatments are working to battle the virus and prolong the lives of those infected. Talk to your HIV Health Care Provider to learn more and decide what's best for you.

HIV/AIDS PREVENTION

Know the Risks/ Prevent the Disease:

HIV affects all walks of life; anyone can get it. Of course, some forms of behavior are riskier than others. That's why it is important to know the risks as well as the ways to prevent HIV. The safest ways to prevent HIV are abstinence (not having sex); not injecting drugs or sharing needles; and for pregnant women, having an HIV test and, if positive, inquiring about treatments during pregnancy. Practicing safer sex through the use of latex condoms or polyurethane condoms will help reduce the spread of HIV. Use a new condom every time and a water-based lubricant for vaginal and anal sex.

Remember...

- Using oil products such as petroleum jelly or body lotion with latex condoms can cause the condom to break.
- Condoms should never be reused.
- If you inject drugs, do not share your equipment and only use needles and syringes that are new and have been sterilized.

Mail Order Condoms

You can sign up to receive condoms and lubricant mailed directly to you for free by DelaWEAR ONE, a mail order program from the Delaware Division of Public Health and the Delaware HIV Consortium. Sign up at www.delawarehiv.org, and click the link for DelaWEAR ONE. You can also sign up through any Ryan White case manager.

Testing:

HIV testing is widely available. Most test centers are able to provide FREE HIV rapid testing, which gives preliminary results in 20 minutes. These centers provide counseling to handle your concerns, answer questions and assist with referrals to HIV Health Care Providers. To find out where you to be tested for free, call the Delaware HELPLINE at 2-1-1 or 302-856-5011.

Please see list of Counseling & Testing Providers in this directory for more information.

PrEP (Pre Exposure Propylaxis)

PrEP is a pill you can take once a day to help prevent the spread of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. You can find out more information about PrEP at www.delawarePrEP.org, and in this directory under the tab "PrEP."

MEDICAL INFORMATION

A. MEDICAL APPOINTMENTS AND LABORATORY (LAB) TESTING

Introduction:

An important part of your HIV health care involves regular visits with your HIV Health Care Provider (HCP) for examination and laboratory (lab) tests. The lab tests are used as a part of your treatment plan to help monitor your HIV progression and to provide information to help you and your HCP make decisions about your treatment regimen—whether you should start, stop or change medication treatments. A commitment to medical appointments and regular lab work is an important way to take charge of your health.

Information on understanding lab results is summarized below. More detailed information can be found on The AIDS InfoNet at www.aidsinfonet.org. InfoNet provides treatment information in the form of single-topic Fact Sheets that are frequently updated. (Click on “Fact Sheet Categories” on InfoNet’s Home page for a listing of all information categories. Then click on the category “Laboratory Tests” for a complete listing of all lab test Fact Sheets.) The Fact Sheets currently are presented in eleven languages. Through collaborative agreements with AIDS service organizations in various countries, InfoNet is expanding the range of languages in which its materials are offered. Always talk with your healthcare provider about your lab results.

The Basics:

There are several different types of lab tests that can be used to monitor HIV and general health status. Depending on your health and whether you are on medication, your HCP will determine how often these tests are done. It is important when you are first diagnosed or when you start your first treatment regimen to get your lab work done to provide a baseline for future comparisons.

Viral Load Test:

The viral load test measures the amount of HIV virus in your blood. The best viral load test result is “undetectable.” This does not mean that there is no virus in your blood. It just means that there is not enough for the test to find and count. For detailed information on the viral load test, talk with your HCP and see InfoNet Fact Sheet Number 125.

CD4 Cell Test:

CD4 cell test measures how many CD4 cells (also called T cells) are in your body. CD4 cells are a part of your immune system, which is responsible for fighting infections. The CD4 cells are directly targeted by HIV. The CD4 cell count is a key measure of the health of the immune system. The lower the count, the greater the damage HIV has done. Anyone who has less than 200 CD4 cells, or a CD4 percentage less than 14%, is considered to have AIDS, according to the US Centers for Disease Control. CD4 counts are also used to indicate when to start certain types of drug therapy. For detailed information on the CD4 cell test, talk with your HCP and see InfoNet Fact Sheet Number 124.

HIV Resistance Testing:

HIV is “resistant” to a medication if it keeps multiplying rapidly while you are taking the medication. Changes (mutations) in the virus cause resistance. HIV usually becomes resistant when it is not totally controlled by medication(s) someone is taking. However, more people are getting infected with HIV that is already resistant to one or more antiretroviral (ARV) medication(s). One of the primary reasons for the development of resistance is not taking ARVs as prescribed. There are several types of resistance tests. Your HCP will determine which type is needed, if at all. For detailed information on HIV resistance testing, talk with your HCP and see InfoNet Fact Sheet Number 126.

Other Lab Tests:

There are other lab tests used to monitor your health status, including: Complete Blood Count or CBC (Fact Sheet Number 121), Chemistry Panel (Fact Sheet Number 122), Lipids—Blood Sugar and Fats (Fact Sheet Number 123). Talk with your HCP about these tests, as well.

B. WHAT TO TAKE TO AN APPOINTMENT

The following list describes the types of information that you should take with you to either an intake appointment or a financial screening appointment. This list may not include everything that you will need but provides a good starting place for you.

- Medicaid/Medicare/Health Insurance Card
- Social Security Card
- Verification of income (pay stubs, SSI award letter, SSI/SSDI application, General Assistance award letter, Food Stamps award letter, etc.)
- Any trust information (Miller Trust, Burial Trust, etc.)

ADAP (AIDS Drug Assistance Program) – A program that helps people pay for HIV-related medications.

AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) – HIV disease becomes AIDS when your immune system is seriously damaged. Generally, if you have less than 200 CD4 cells or are diagnosed with an opportunistic infection, you are AIDS-defined.

C&T (Counseling and Testing) – The voluntary process of client-centered, interactive information sharing in which an individual is made aware of the basic information about HIV/AIDS, testing procedures, how to prevent the transmission and acquisition of HIV infection, and given tailored support on how to adapt this information to their life.

CDC (Centers for Disease Control) – The Federal agency within the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services that administers HIV/AIDS prevention programs; responsible for monitoring and reporting of infectious diseases.

CD4 Cells (Also Known as T Cells) – CD4 cells (also known as T cells) are the ‘helper’ white blood cells, part of your immune system. When HIV infects humans, the cells it infects most often are CD4 cells. The virus becomes part of the cells, and when they multiply to fight an infection, they also make more copies of HIV.

CM (Case Manager) – A case manager provides a range of client-centered services that links clients with primary medical care, psychosocial and other services to insure timely, coordinated access to medically-appropriate levels of health and support services, continuity of care, ongoing assessment of the client’s and other family members’ needs and personal support systems.

Comprehensive Planning – The process of determining the organization and delivery of HIV services; strategy used by a planning council or consortium to help make better decisions about services and to develop and maintain a continuum of care for people living with HIV/AIDS.

Consortium – A planning group established by states to plan and sometimes administer Ryan White Part B funds. Consortia members usually include health care providers, support service providers, and consumers.

CTRPN (Counseling, Testing, Referral and Partner Notification) – CTRPN refers to voluntary HIV/AIDS counseling and testing, referral to appropriate medical and social services, and anonymous or confidential partner notification of sex or needle-sharing partners by health department staff when accompanied by testing; includes pre-test counseling.

HRSA (Health Resources and Services Administration) – The federal agency in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services that administers the Ryan White CARE Act.
